The Future of Work

On October 25, PBS Hawai‘i hosted 34 community members from education, government, business, labor and nonprofit to discuss The Future of Work – Will You Be Employable? Will Your Children?

This conversation continues on May 2, 2019 with "The Future of Work – Can Hawai‘i Thrive Because of Automation?"
Leadership Takeaways from Long Story Short

I wish wisdom were contagious, like colds. If so, my Long Story Short team and I would be wise beyond our dreams. Over the last decade, we’ve been face to face with well over 200 leaders and interesting citizens, listening to their personal stories of success and failure and lessons learned.

As we look ahead to a new year and new resolve, I thought I’d share with you a few leadership traits and skills touched upon by guests on the program:

Ability to Distill What’s Most Important

This is the ability to filter ideas and aspirations through the context of one’s purpose, goals and resources.

Example: The outgoing head of Punahou School, Dr. Jim Scott, deals with students, teachers, parents, administrators, donors, alumni, trustees and untold complexities. Every day, he said, every third person who walks into his office has a great idea for him.

How does he set a course? He recalls his baseball days. As a student athlete at Punahou and Stanford University, he was better at pitching than hitting. When he became a teacher who also coached baseball and he wanted to know more about hitting, he picked up a book by one of the greatest hitters of all time, Ted Williams. Williams wrote that the secret is knowing what pitches to let go.

Dr. Scott said: “I got to thinking about the Ted Williams School of Management and wondering what pitches not to swing at, which good ideas do you not go for...From where I sit in my office, I’m looking for synergy, congruence. I’m kind of a broker of ideas, and when I see patterns and recurring themes, they become good. And that’s why an idea sometimes takes time to bake, to form.”

Battle-hardened Confidence

This is the conviction that you can and will make a tough decision, because you’ve done it before.

Example: Mark Dunkerley, the former CEO of Hawaiian Airlines, a brilliant strategist and turn-around master in a fiercely competitive industry, commented: “I’m always struck by how difficult a time people have in making decisions. Making decisions, based in part on analysis, but never with perfect information, and largely based on the accumulation of one’s personal experience, is something that I’ve always felt comfortable with. That’s not something that keeps me awake at night.”

Fearlessness

This is a willingness to take bold action, even though it turns the status quo upside down or inside out.

Example: Civil rights icon Minnijean Brown Trickey, visiting Hawai’i from Arkansas, was one of the Little Rock Nine – nine African American teenagers who in 1957 integrated a white school, Central High, amid riots. They kept going to school despite hatred and harassment.

“Somebody had to do it,” Trickey said.

Explaining that the civil rights movement was youth-driven, she said: “The young people were doing things that the grown-ups couldn’t do, because in fact they would lose their jobs. And they didn’t put us there, we put ourselves there and asked them to come with us. There’s a line in a freedom song (that says) ‘if you don’t go, don’t hinder me.’ And another line is, ‘If my mama don’t go, I’ll go anyhow.’ It was about seeing a different vision, and hoping that it didn’t stay the same.”

There are many life takeaways in the Long Story Short files, and I’ll bring you more from time to time. Also, I invite you to view or read transcripts of the interviews on our website at pbshawaii.org/lss

We at PBS Hawai’i are grateful to you, as a loyal supporter, for helping to provide this rich resource.

Lifeline: Pearl Harbor’s Unknown Hero

Thursday, December 6, 9:00 pm
Six men wave for help from the deck of the USS Arizona on December 7, 1941. The battleship had been hit by Japanese bombers, igniting an ammunition store, and sending flames up the masts and control towers. Alongside the Arizona was moored the USS Vestal, a repair and maintenance ship, where Boatswain’s Mate Second Class Joe George was fighting encroaching fires. The Vestal’s captain and other crew members had been blown overboard by an explosion, and a senior officer wanted to move the Vestal away from the sinking Arizona and the burning oil on the surface of the surrounding water.

The officer ordered George to cut the Vestal loose. If the Arizona sank, the Vestal would go with it. Seeing the men waving for help on the Arizona’s deck, George refused. He threw a line toward the Arizona, allowing the men to crawl across to relative safety before returning to combat the fires onboard.

George was commended for his actions on the record of his time in the Navy, his Continuous Service Certificate, but never received a medal. In fact, he was known as “The Unknown Sailor” for many years, having rarely spoken to anyone about the event.

Around the 60th anniversary of the Pearl Harbor attack in 2001, the remaining survivors of the six rescued sailors set about securing a medal for George. “They made it their final mission to make sure that Joe George was recognized for what he did,” said filmmaker Tim Gray,

“George wasn’t a model Navy sailor — he was a brawler and liked to drink — but when the time came, he chose to save the lives of fellow sailors, disobeying a direct order.”

Narrated by actor Gary Sinise, PBS HAWAI‘I PRESENTS Lifeline: Pearl Harbor’s Unknown Hero tells the story of how Joe George became an unlikely hero, and how he was recognized with a Bronze Medal more than 70 years later. “Even though Pearl Harbor was attacked 77 years ago, this is a story people have never heard before,” said Gray, “Individual stories of heroism like this so easily fly under the radar. It is important that people hear them.”

ATSUHIKO AND INA GOODWIN TATEUCHI FOUNDATION

For the most up-to-date program information and the latest schedules, please visit pbshawaii.org
PBS Hawai‘i is a mission-driven nonprofit whose budget comes from the generous support of viewers like you. We continue to serve as a convener of diverse voices in Hawai‘i; to create partnerships that bring our community together; and to provide educational opportunities no one else does.

All members of the extended PBS Hawai‘i family — parents who watch Curious George with their kids, teachers who use NOVA in their classrooms, viewers who call in to Insights on PBS Hawai‘i to have their questions answered — make this work possible. The contributions of grandparents, friends, foundations and businesses are all greatly appreciated.

Your gift is important. Gifts of any size are welcome and can make a difference.

Please give to this station by visiting pbshawaii.org/support to make an online contribution. You can make a one-time gift, or become a sustaining supporter with a recurring monthly gift.

Other ways you can make an impact:

– Sponsor a PBS Hawai‘i program
– Become a member of our Keiki Club
– Donate residential, commercial or undeveloped real estate
– Make a gift of appreciated securities
– Direct a distribution from your IRA
– Include PBS Hawai‘i in your will or estate plans

Details on how you can support Hawai‘i’s public television station can be found online at pbshawaii.org/support or by calling 462-5000.
