Who You Gonna Call?

It's time for a new three-year strategic plan for this 55-year-old nonprofit organization serving our beloved, troubled state. How does one know, in changing, uncertain times, what Hawai'i will need most from PBS Hawai'i? How can we best serve our viewers and fellow citizens?

We take very seriously the feedback we receive from our Community Advisory Board Members, who live in communities across the state and who pay attention – to their island turf and to PBS Hawai'i's programming.

In a moving discussion, full of humanity, the Board told staffers that 1) We need to keep convening diverse voices in a neutral space, because common ground and solutions are getting harder to find; 2) We need to illuminate learning about the Hawaiian culture; 3) HIKI NŌ should expand its range to provide life, school and work skills to students in grade school through college; 4) We need to keep serving young children with curriculum-rich programming, since more than half do not attend preschool.

Family services leader Momi Akana wanted us to know that it's not only a lack of affordability or geographical distance that keeps keiki from preschool. She said that parents who have been sexually or otherwise physically abused as children are very wary of leaving their little ones with adults they don't know. That's why many of these parents choose PBS KIDS to help educate their toddlers at home, Momi said. There was concerned silence as we all pondered this.

It's a Board that keeps things simple and straightforward – and deep. Main thing, said advisors: "Keep Hawai'i's trust. It's tough to earn, easy to lose."

Aloha nui,

Leslie

A Life Well Lived

PBS Hawai'i honors the life of longtime volunteer, Matsuko Kawana. Matsuko, or as we affectionately called her, "Grandma," passed away peacefully in February at age 101. We will remember and miss her sweet smile, her stories of growing up on O'ahu and Maui and her hardworking and humble nature. Rest in aloha, Matsuko.

PBS Hawai'i Presents

REEL WĀHINE OF HAWAII

Thursday, April 30 at 9:00 pm

Sponsored by
Waimea Valley | Hawaiian Airlines
DUNKIN' | PASHA HAWAII

COVER STORY By Liberty Peralta, PBS Hawai'i

Since the rise of the #MeToo movement in 2017, a spotlight on gender inequity in the historically male-dominated film industry has been shining brighter than ever. In April, PBS Hawai'i shines a local spotlight on our Islands' own women filmmakers with a month-long presentation of their stories.

The presentation is anchored by the statewide broadcast premiere of PBS Hawai'i Presents: Reel Wāhine of Hawai'i on Thursday, April 30 at 9:00 pm. The hour-long compilation of six locally produced short films tells the stories of these Hawai'i-based filmmakers, taking them from behind the camera to out in front:

CONNIE M. FLOREZ
Founder, Hula Girl Productions

HEATHER HAUNANI GIUGNI
Producer, Family Ingredients
Founder, 'Ulu'ulu: The Henry Ku'ualoha Giugni
Moving Image Archive of Hawai'i

VICTORIA KEITH
Producer/camera operator, The Sand Island Story

CIARA LEINA'ALA LACY
Writer/producer/director, Out of State

ANNE MISAWA
Director/cinematographer/producer
Associate Professor, University of Hawai'i at Mānoa-
Academy for Creative Media

JEANNETTE PAULSON HERENIKO
Founding Director, Hawai'i International Film Festival

The six short films recount each woman's creative philosophies, challenges and triumphs in contributing to Hawai'i's film industry.

The shorts are produced by Hawai'i Women in Filmmaking, a nonprofit organization with a mission to redress gender inequity in the film industry. The organization's executive director, Vera Zambonelli, directed the short film on Paulson Hereniko.

"In Hawai'i, we have a strong history of women behind the camera, including Native Hawaiians and women of color," Zambonelli said. "Most of them have never told their stories before, and their accomplishments are great. We need to research, record and disseminate this knowledge to counter the ways that academic and cultural histories regularly neglect women's authorship and work in film and in the arts in general."

The series was also a training opportunity for young graduates of Hawai'i Women in Filmmaking's educational programs. A team of veteran filmmakers guided the graduates along the production of the six short films. "We envisioned the series as an intergenerational project, where we put our active women filmmakers to work, documenting the stories of veterans of the field, while mentoring and training the next generation of Hawai'i women filmmakers," Zambonelli said.

Reel Wāhine of Hawai'i producer Shirley Thompson sums up the importance of showcasing the stories of these and other women filmmakers. "[They] aren't getting the same opportunities as men, in terms of hiring, pay, access to financing and access to gatekeepers," she said. "Film is a powerful medium that shapes our very society. If we exclude women from writing those stories, or deciding which stories get told, we are excluding women's voices from shaping our society and our future."

As part of our month-long celebration of Hawai'i women filmmakers, PBS Hawai'i will air these encore presentations:

STEPHANIE CASTILLO
Tuesday, April 21, 7:30 pm

Stephanie Castillo is a former Honolulu print journalist and Emmy-winning documentary filmmaker whose work includes biographies, social and cultural histories and niche topics, including opera and cockfighting. Castillo released her first documentary film, Simple Courage, in 1992, which drew parallels between Hansen's Disease and the major health crisis at the time of the film's release, the AIDS epidemic. Born in Honolulu to a military family, Castillo moved around many times as a child, which she credits to establishing her cosmopolitan view of the world.

An encore of Castillo's 2009 film Strange Land: My Mother's War Bride Story will be shown on PBS HAWAII PRESENTS on Thursday, April 23 at 9:00 pm as part of our month-long celebration of Hawai'i women filmmakers. The film tells the story of an immigrant bride who is transformed by her perseverance and by her acceptance that there will be no turning back.

Kiribati
President
Anote Tong

Anote's Ark

Saturday, April 25 at 8:00 pm

The Pacific Island nation of Kiribati (population: 100,000) is one of the most remote places on the planet, seemingly far-removed from the pressures of modern life. Yet it is one of the first countries that must confront the main existential dilemma of our time: imminent annihilation from sea-level rise.

While Kiribati's President Anote Tong races to find a way to protect his nation's people and maintain their dignity, many Kiribati are already seeking safe harbor overseas. The story of Anote's struggle to save his nation is intertwined with the extraordinary fate of Tiemeri, a young mother of six, who fights to migrate her family to New Zealand. At stake is the survival of Tiemeri's family, the Kiribati people and 4,000 years of Kiribati culture.

Now in its ninth season, the anthology series PACIFIC HEARTBEAT brings the authentic Pacific – people, cultures, language and contemporary issues – to your screen. The series is a production of Pacific Islanders in Communication in partnership with PBS Hawai'i and is distributed nationally by American Public Television.

A Beautiful Day in the Neighborhood, Thanks to Matson

Kama'āina shipping company Matson has long supported PBS Hawai'i in different ways, including having helped bring the popular national PBS program Antiques Roadshow to the Islands in 2006.

When PBS Hawai'i decided to re-locate to the Sand Island/Nimitz area near Matson's Honolulu headquarters, the relationship grew.

Then-Matson Board Chair Walter Dods Jr., President and CEO Matthew Cox and Foundation President Gary Nakamatsu presented $50,000 to our capital campaign to build our new facility, which was completed in 2016.

"You do good work and you're our neighbors," Dods told us. "People don't think the Sand Island industrial area is a neighborhood, but it is."

Part of Matson's corporate culture is to support communities where it does business.

Ku'uhaku Park, the company's VP of Government and Community Affairs, says Matson looks at the whole ahupua'a (mountain-to-sea land division) as its neighborhood.

In neighborly fashion, he stopped by PBS Hawai'i the other day to renew Matson's sponsorship of PBS NewsHour and talk story.

As Mister Rogers, a man from another familiar neighborhood, said: "The greatest phrase in any language is thank you." Thank you so very much, Matson.
