At PBS Hawai'i, our work continues to be rooted in a simple belief: Hawai'i's stories matter. Whether through local documentaries, trusted civic conversations, Hawaiian music, or student-produced content, we stay focused on serving our state with integrity and care.

Fiscal Year 2026 brought significant change to public media nationwide, yet PBS Hawai'i stayed grounded. We communicated clearly, relied on our mission, and continued to provide the educational, cultural, and civic resources our community counts on. That steady approach strengthened trust and helped drive one of the most successful years in our history.

Strengthening Our Commitment to Hawai'i

Throughout the year, we invested in local storytelling that reflects the depth and diversity of our islands. Home is Here released new episodes celebrating the resilience of Honoka'a on the Hāmākua Coast and honoring the legacy of Aloha Stadium, places filled with history, community pride, and unforgettable moments. These stories deepened our connection to viewers statewide and reinforced the importance of place-based storytelling.

We premiered In Hawaiian Hands, a two-part reggae documentary exploring the evolution of reggae in Hawai'i and the artists who shaped its sound. We also completed the final season of Alanui Mele, chronicling Hawai'i's hip hop history through thoughtful interviews and archival footage. Together, these projects highlighted the breadth of Hawai'i's musical heritage.

Our PBS Hawai'i Presents series featured 16 films, including a 10-part series that created new opportunities for emerging storytellers. These films ranged from cultural explorations to personal narratives, reflecting the creativity and diversity of Hawai'i's independent producers. PBS Hawai'i Classics continued to preserve and share archival gems from Spectrum Hawai'i and Pau Hana Years, connecting generations to Hawai'i's history and culture through restored footage and timeless profiles.

Nā Mele remained a cornerstone of our cultural stewardship. This year included live recordings with Henry Kapono and Friends at Halekulani in Waikīkī and new studio performances from Kalapana, Joshua Kahula, Nuff Sedd, and Kala'e Camarillo. These programs celebrate and preserve Hawai'i's musical heritage, bridging generations through mele and strengthening our commitment to local music.

Engaging and Empowering Learners

HIKI NŌ on PBS Hawai'i continued to be a statewide catalyst for student storytelling, confidence, and creativity. In April 2026, the program celebrated its 17th season. Students produced personal narratives, cultural features, and issue-driven stories that aired across the state, guided by dedicated teachers, mentors, and PBS Hawai'i staff.

A major milestone this year was the implementation of a centralized Airtable database, bringing together 17 seasons, 362 episodes, and more than 1,600 stories into a single system. This resource improves efficiency, strengthens archival access, and supports coordinated distribution across broadcast and digital platforms. It also enhances grant reporting, supports rebroadcast planning, and provides real-time visibility into stories moving through the production pipeline. Partnerships with HIDOE, STEMworks Hawai'i, and Mental Health America of Hawai'i helped students explore mental health, innovation, and resilience with depth and care.

Civic Dialogue That Brings Hawai'i Together

PBS Hawai'i continued to serve as a trusted public square. We produced 33 new episodes of INSIGHTS on PBS Hawai'i, covering issues ranging from flash flood threats to Medicaid changes, proposed driver-license rules, the future of the Waikiki Natatorium, and whether college athletes should be paid with public money. These conversations provided clarity on complex issues and reinforced our role as a neutral, accessible space for civic engagement.

On May 14, 2026, we hosted a live conversation with the finalists for Honolulu's 13th police chief, the second time the Honolulu Police Commission selected PBS Hawai'i to host this public forum. The 90-minute broadcast gave viewers a chance to hear directly from the candidates and submit questions in real time, strengthening transparency and public trust.

We also produced five KĀKOU: Hawai'i's Town Hall programs, bringing neighbors together to discuss topics including the arts, faith, affordability, constitutional reform, and the future of Kalaupapa. Each conversation was grounded in respect, openness, and community-centered dialogue.

Digital Growth and Innovation

FY2026 marked our strongest digital year to date. PBS Hawai'i is now operating as a digital-first content producer, meeting audiences where they are and expanding our reach far beyond traditional broadcast.

Six episodes of 'ONO! Hawai'i's Food Culture surpassed 100,000 views, including two that exceeded 650,000 views combined. Our social platforms saw record increases across Instagram, YouTube, TikTok, and Facebook, reflecting both the quality of our content and the strong appetite for authentic, local storytelling.

We continued to strengthen partnerships that support digital innovation, including collaborations with Spectrum and Honolulu Magazine. These partnerships help us reach new audiences, deepen engagement statewide, and inform content strategy through advanced viewer data.

Infrastructure, Access and Organizational Resilience

Operationally, we made adjustments to absorb the loss of federal funding without disrupting service. These included reducing annual expenses, securing a one-time 15.4 percent reduction in national programming dues, and realigning internal operations to strengthen long-term sustainability. PBS Hawai'i will now cover the full cost of national programming, an estimated $1.34 million for FY2026 and $1.41 million for FY2027, reinforcing the importance of the community-based model that has sustained us for decades.

Philanthropic Momentum and Community Trust

Community support remained strong throughout the fiscal year. Operational fundraising exceeded expectations across individual giving, major gifts, and foundation support. December became our first million-dollar month in operational revenue, and we surpassed $4 million in Advancement fundraising, a milestone for our organization.

For the 22nd consecutive year, PBS was ranked as America's most trusted institution. Here at home, we remain committed to upholding that trust through transparency, integrity, and aloha.

Looking Ahead

As we celebrate our 60th anniversary year, PBS Hawai'i is focused on building a future rooted in local relevance, digital innovation, and access for all. We remain committed to providing high-quality educational content, trusted journalism, and storytelling that reflects the people and places of Hawai'i.

Nationally acclaimed programs such as PBS NewsHour, NOVA, Nature, FRONTLINE, All Creatures Great and Small and Antiques Roadshow, along with beloved children's programs like Sesame Street and Daniel Tiger's Neighborhood, continue to enrich lives across our state. Our mission remains clear: to uplift, to inform, and to connect Hawai'i's people through thoughtful, independent media.

On behalf of our Board of Directors and our dedicated staff, mahalo nui for your continued support and for your belief in the importance of independent, community-based public media. With your partnership, PBS Hawai'i will continue to serve our entire state with purpose, care, and aloha.

With aloha and respect,

Our Mission

PBS Hawai'i advances learning and discovery through storytelling that profoundly touches lives.

Hawai'i's Television Station

PBS Hawai'i is the only locally owned, statewide television station in Hawai'i, broadcasting in the islands since 1966. We are the sole Hawai'i member of the trusted Public Broadcasting Service (PBS).

Led by a statewide Board of Directors and a locally based team of management and staff, PBS Hawai'i is the only federally licensed educational broadcaster in the state.

We share the stories of the community we serve, offering local content and engagement that remain true to our values; pono (rightness/balance), kuleana (responsibility), 'imi na'auao (knowledge/wisdom), lōkahi (collaboration/unity), aloha kekahi i kekahi (respecting/caring for others), mālama (to protect/care for), kūlia i ka nu'u (strive for excellence).

ENGINEERING

During fiscal year 2026, we made the following updates to PBS Hawai'i.

PBS Hawai'i tower at Palehua on O'ahu

Emergency Alert System Upgrade

We replaced the Digital Alert Systems DASDEC with the new DASDEC III Emergency Alert System. The DASDEC III is the next generation of emergency messaging technology, providing improved reliability, enhanced security and long-term support for federal and state emergency alerting requirements.

XPression Graphics System

We installed a new Ross XPression graphics system to enhance on-air production capabilities. The new real-time motion graphics platform enables the creation of high-quality broadcast graphics and streamlines the production workflow, allowing staff to produce more dynamic and engaging visual content.

Ross Video Production Switcher

We upgraded the station's production control room with a new Ross Acuity video production switcher and TouchDrive control surface. This system provides increased flexibility, expanded production capabilities and improved operator efficiency while supporting high-quality live productions.

Audio Console Replacement

We replaced the production's audio console with a new Solid State Logic (SSL) digital audio system. The new console utilizes industry-standard IP networking for audio transport, routing, device discovery and control. Its fully redundant network architecture improves reliability and provides a modern broadcast infrastructure capable of supporting future production requirements.

HIKI NŌ

 PBS HAWAI'I

Season 17 of HIKI NŌ on PBS Hawai'i celebrated a major milestone: 15 years of empowering Hawai'i's students to tell their stories, share their perspectives and connect communities across the islands. Since the first episode aired on February 28, 2011, HIKI NŌ has grown into a statewide network of student storytellers and educators, providing authentic learning experiences through media production and journalism. This year, the program honored its legacy while investing in its future through expanded educator engagement, strengthened collaboration and new opportunities for students to showcase their creativity and voices. Across 22 episodes featuring 99 student-produced stories from 41 schools, HIKI NŌ continued to demonstrate the power of authentic youth storytelling while supporting many additional schools through training, mentorship and professional development opportunities.

Student Storytelling That Resonates

Season 17 continued HIKI NŌ's tradition of elevating student voices through meaningful storytelling experiences. Student work throughout the year reflected themes of cultural identity, environmental stewardship, community history and personal growth. Special episodes highlighted some of the most impactful work of the season, including the Student Voice Awards in partnership with Mental Health America of Hawai'i, which honored stories centered on empathy, resilience and mental health awareness. The Class of 2025 spotlight episodes returned, showcasing graduating seniors reflecting on their HIKI NŌ experiences and its lasting impact. HIKI NŌ also contributed to PBS Hawai'i's 60th anniversary programming with a retrospective segment reflecting on its 15-year history and statewide impact.

Participation in the Fall, Winter and Spring Challenges remained strong. The 2025 Fall Challenge featured eight high schools and two middle schools across all major islands, including first-time participant O Hina i Ka Malama Hawaiian Language Academy at Moloka'i High School. The 2026 Winter Challenge saw increased elementary participation, leading to the introduction of a dedicated elementary division, with Alvah Scott Elementary in 'Aiea, O'ahu, earning top recognition in its inaugural category. The 2026 Spring Challenge marked a new chapter with Maui Ocean Center joining as presenting sponsor, guiding students through the theme "Where We Meet the Water."

Strengthening Learning Through Story

A major highlight of the year was the return of the in-person HIKI NŌ Teachers Conference for the first time since 2019. Educators from across the state participated in hands-on workshops led by HIKI NŌ mentors, staff and peers, focusing on pre-production, scripting, interviewing, sound, editing and post-production. The conference strengthened educator collaboration and provided practical tools to support student storytelling in the classroom.

Kiara Hamora & Alohilani Riklon from Kealahou High School

The PBS Learning Media collection also expanded with three new Hawai'i-based lesson plans focused on science and environmental stewardship. Among them was a collaboration with Hyperspective featuring Vanishing Voices: Saving Our Hawaiian Forest Birds, paired with PBS Hawai'i content in a lesson on the impact of invasive mosquitoes on native bird populations and ongoing conservation efforts. An additional science lesson and a HIKI NŌ production tutorial are in development.

Elevating Youth Voices Through Collaboration

HIKI NŌ continued to strengthen its statewide impact through partnerships and shared learning opportunities. PBS Hawai'i staff and mentors participated in SHOTS Summit Hawai'i, which brought together 920 participants, including 702 students and 98 teachers. Through workshops and judging, HIKI NŌ reinforced storytelling standards, collaboration and career readiness for emerging media creators.

HIKI NŌ also continued its partnership with Mental Health America of Hawai'i through the Student Voice Awards. In addition, HIKI NŌ partnered with A King in Paradise, a project inspired by Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s visit to Hawai'i, offering students opportunities to reflect on the legacy of their schools and communities through storytelling. HIKI NŌ also partnered with the Hawai'i Workforce Pipeline to provide students and teachers with real-world learning experiences and career exploration opportunities.

A Growing Community of Storytellers

As HIKI NŌ celebrated its 15th anniversary, the program continued to highlight the long-term impact of student participation beyond high school. Alumni shared how their experiences shaped their academic and career paths.

This year, HIKI NŌ featured former Gwen Ifill Fellows from Kaua'i High School. Kate Nakamura is studying at Arizona State University's Walter Cronkite School of Journalism and recently completed an internship with Arizona PBS, contributing to broadcast production and digital content. Tiffany Sagocio now works in early childhood education, applying the communication and storytelling skills developed through HIKI NŌ in her work with young learners. Their journeys reflect the enduring impact of HIKI NŌ: equipping students with skills to tell meaningful stories and contribute to their communities. Fifteen years after its launch, HIKI NŌ continues to grow as both a storytelling platform and a catalyst for student opportunity across Hawai'i.

Local Programs

We are dedicated to creating original programs that reflect the diversity of our island home — programs that our viewers have come to appreciate and trust. This compelling content covers a wide variety of issues that matter to our community, preserving our diverse cultural and ethnic backgrounds and building understanding through distinct voices and authentic representation.

INSIGHTS on PBS HAWAII

This weekly, live one-hour public affairs program on most Thursdays throughout the year offered discussions on a variety of issues facing our community, including:

- New rules for skateboarders and moped riders
- Next steps for the Department of Hawaiian Homelands after it did not get requested funds from the Legislature
- What is being done to combat the alarming increase in traffic fatalities across the state
- Getting more locally-grown food into the public school meal system
- Updates on the redevelopment of Aloha Stadium, the War Memorial Natatorium in Waikiki and a city plan to build a race track in Kalaeloa, Central Oahu
- An episode featuring the mayors of each of Hawaii's four counties
- The increasing threat of flash flooding as the climate changes
- A discussion on how the state and medical providers are handling changes to the Medicaid system
- How the state is dealing with less federal money for education
- How the legal system is dealing with the expanded use of artificial intelligence (AI)
- What the state is doing to rejuvenate the local film industry
- Details on the first time that surfing is designated as an official, sanctioned competitive high school sport
- Whether enough is being done to promote sports tourism in Hawaii;
- Explaining how revenue from the new so-called "green fee" tax on tourists will be spent
- Details of new proposed rules to renew driver's licenses
- Whether taxpayer money should be used to pay college athletes
- The pros and cons of a proposed partnership between the state's biggest medical insurance provider HMSA and the second largest hospital system in the islands, Hawaii Pacific Health
- A discussion with the three finalists for Honolulu Police Chief

- How to prepare for hurricane and wildfire season
- Three episodes featuring candidates in election contests from across O'ahu, including the Democratic Primary for State House Districts 26, 28 and 39 as well as the Republican Primary for State House District 39.

Home is Here

This monthly 30-minute program includes stories about life in Hawai'i from all islands.

In fiscal year 2026, these included:

- A profile of historian, journalist and columnist Bob Sigall
- The history of Grove Farm museum on Kaua'i
- A collection of Filipino art and cultural items in a curated exhibit
- An episode dedicated to the history and people of Honoka'a along the Big Island's Hāmākua Coast
- Keoni Kaholoa'a, an interpretive park ranger at Volcanoes National Park, iwho returned home to rediscover his culture and share it with others

Keoni Kaholoa'a

Aloha Stadium

- Local hip-hop star Tassho Pearce and Micronesian artist Kalany Omengkar
- A story about rice bag clothing and the origin of palaka in fashions unique to Hawai'i
- An engineering major who left the construction industry after 10 years to chase his passion for astronomy
- Jana Lam, an entrepreneur who discovered her passion for screen printing and created a successful business
- A Kaua'i police officer who developed a skill in the Japanese art of gyotaku, or fish painting
- The Hawaiian Railway Society, the only surviving railroad in Hawai'i, which provides a historical tour in West O'ahu
- An episode devoted to the history of Aloha Stadium
- The little-known Lāna'i Culture and Heritage Center preserving the history of that island
- The Ho'omau Fire Academy that prepares young people for careers as a firefighters
- The Aloha State Sumo Association which teaches young athletes the technique and protocols of the ancient Japanese sport of sumo.

Joshua Kahula & Nuff Sedd

Nā Mele

In fiscal-year 2026 we featured Maui musician Joshua Kahula and his band Nuff Sedd which have been making music for more than 20 years.

We also produced a pledge show featuring Kalapana, a band from the 1970s that was celebrating its 50th anniversary with a touring show that included a few veteran musicians mixed with younger music artists against a backdrop of videos of performances by original band members through several decades.

Kalapana

Henry Kaponono at Halekulani's House Without A Key

In another pledge program, we recorded Henry Kaponono at Halekulani's House Without A Key where he performed favorite songs he produced through the years and songs performed as part of the popular Cecilio & Kaponono duo.

We recorded 'ukulele virtuoso Taimane and the group Ei Nei. Both programs will premiere in fiscal year 2027.

KĀKOU: Hawai'i's Town Hall

PBS Hawai'i presented five, live 90-minute episodes of KĀKOU: Hawai'i's Town Hall. The programs featured panels with varied voices about the topic at hand as well as questions sent in by viewers via phone, email and social media.

The first episode was called The Arts: Why We Need Them. Research shows that people enjoy a higher quality of life when they participate in community arts programs. A local study revealed a strong demand for such programs particularly those that elevate local artists and their contributions to cultural identity. This program brought together practitioners from different disciplines including those grounded in Native Hawaiian culture such as kumu hula to discuss the need and desire for arts programs and the positive effects they have on the community at large.

The second episode was titled How Do We Define Faith? In this program, PBS Hawai'i brought together representatives of different religious denominations to discuss faith, which is defined differently by different people. For many, it is rooted in religion. For others, it is defined by culture, family, community or something else. Whatever the source, faith can keep us grounded through both good and challenging times.

Episode three was called Is It Time for a Constitutional Convention? Hawai'i last held a Constitutional Convention 48 years ago, in 1978. That was the second and last time a so-called ConCon happened. Every 10 years voters are asked to vote on whether the state should hold a convention. In 1978, voters approved dozens of amendments put forth by the convention including the right to privacy, the establishment of the Office of Hawaiian Affairs and term limits for the governor. This program featured delegates who were part of the 1978 convention young lawmakers currently in office and other panelists who shared the pros and cons of holding such an event.

The fourth show was titled Creating a Hawai'i We Can Afford. This program brought together people from diverse perspectives to find solutions to the decades-old problem of the high cost of living in Hawai'i. Housing costs top the list, but the challenge extends far beyond that including everyday essentials like groceries.

Episode five was called The Future of Kalaupapa. The peninsula on the north shore of Moloka'i is made up of some of the most scenic and pristine natural views in the world. It has also been home to Hansen's disease patients for more than 160 years. Thousands of Hawai'i residents were forced to leave their families and relocate to this remote settlement when they were diagnosed or even suspected of having leprosy. Despite the banishment and isolation, the patients created a community. Many chose to stay once forced relocations stopped. This program brought together stakeholders to discuss what happens or should happen once the last patients are gone.

The Future of Kalaupapa

PBS HAWAII PRESENTS

PBS Hawaii shared 16 new independent films, including a 10-episode series and brought back an award-winning film the stationed produced in 1977.

Awakened from Darkness was produced and directed by Maui filmmaker Tom Vendetti, who followed the story of Sam Khong for more than 20 years. Khong was in military training in the U.S. when his home country of Cambodia fell during the brutal Khmer Rouge takeover. He found his way to Maui while suffering from clinical depression, post-traumatic stress disorder and a head injury. All the while, he had no idea if his family had survived. A support team helped him get back to Cambodia to find answers and peace.

Island Cowgirls profiles two cowgirls on opposite sides of Hawaii island, dedicated to caring for their family ranches. La'i Bertlemann grapples with accepting a mainland scholarship or staying in Hawaii to study her culture and be with her grandfather. Lani Cran Petrie has a balanced land management plan for Kapāpala Ranch, but the state-held lease is up for renewal. This program is a digital-only presentation.

Hometown Legends features five kūpuna sharing their history, mea hana (craft) and kuleana (responsibility) as was passed to them. They represent paniolo (cowboys), lawai'a (fishermen), po'e ulana (lauhala weavers) pahu (drum) carvers and hoe wa'a (canoe paddling) – cultural practices through generations of Native Hawaiian history.

Shipment Day is a film adapted from a stage production taken from the memoir of Olivia Robello Breitha who was sent to Kalaupapa, Moloka'i in the early 1930s after being diagnosed with leprosy while living with her family on Kaua'i. The film focuses on the two years she spent at Kalihi Hospital in

Hometown Legends

Honolulu before being sent to Kalaupapa on what back then was called Shipment Day.

Damien was produced by PBS Hawaii in 1977. It was a one-man play featuring actor Terence Knapp as Father Damien De Veuster, the Belgian priest who ministered to and cared for Hansen's disease patients at Kalaupapa. The film played nationally in 1978 and won a Peabody Award. It is only the third the time the station has played the film since 2009 when Damien was canonized as a saint by the Catholic Church. It is the first time the film was made available on-demand on pbshawaii.org and on the PBS Hawaii YouTube page for all to see.

Price of Paradise shares the compelling story of Lindamae Lawelawe Maldonado who was 55 years when she learned the truth about her adoption. She was forcibly taken from her parents who were patients at Kalaupapa, Moloka'i. The film follows her journey for identity and her discovery of a family she never knew she had.

Corpsman! Pearl Harbor examines the role of corpsmen and medics during World War II with a focus on the experiences of Harry Chandler, who was stationed at Pearl Harbor, O'ahu when Japanese planes launched a surprise attack on December 7, 1941.

A Leader's Journey is a 10-episode series hosted by veteran broadcaster Yunji de Nies that profiles impactful leaders from around the state. Featured in the series are: Billy Pieper, Josie Howard, Amy Miller, Rich Matsuda, Marisa Castuera Hayase, John Leong, Janice Ikeda, Jack Kittinger, Dawn Lippert and Diane Paloma.

PBS HAWAII CLASSICS

These are vintage programs from the PBS Hawaii archives that run most Wednesdays at 7:30 pm. We also shared two 60-minute programs that had not been seen in decades.

Japanese New Year was a Spectrum Hawaii episode that premiered in 1996 and featured residents of Japanese ancestry who celebrated the New Year with customs and practices brought to the islands by immigrants who came to work on plantations.

Honolulu Stadium: Where Hawaii Played also premiered in 1996 in the Spectrum Hawaii series. The documentary-style program recounted the nearly 50-year history of Honolulu Stadium in Mō'ili'ili featuring historic photos and footage combined with interviews with sports figures, promoters, journalists and others who shared memories of the so-called "Termite Palace."

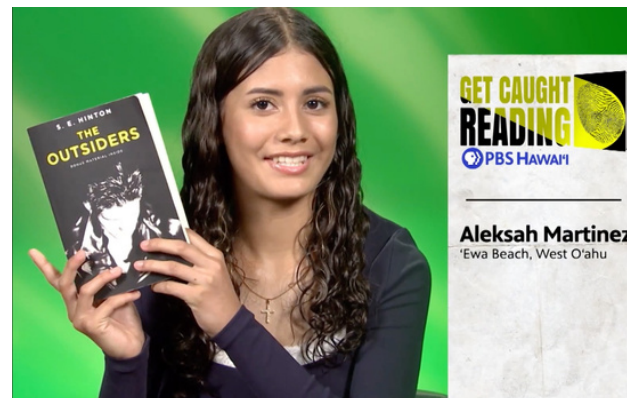

PBS Hawaii turned 60 on April 15, 2026. To commemorate that milestone, we produced a 90-minute pledge program that included clips from many of the programs dating back to 1966 and interviewed former station personnel, including three who started as student employees in the 1960s, 70s and 80s.

Honolulu Stadium: Where Hawaii Played

GET CAUGHT READING

PBS Hawaii continues to produce GET CAUGHT READING spots that range from 30 seconds to 90 seconds and feature people from all walks of life reading a passage from a favorite book or poem. Animation of the spoken words accompany the read to encourage reading for all ages.

ALANUI MELE: Hawaii Hip-Hop History

ALANUI MELE: Hawaii Hip-Hop History explores the intricate, influential and sometimes enigmatic origins of hip-hop culture in Hawaii as told through the lens of some of the most prolific figures in the local hip-hop landscape.

The video podcast includes 43 episodes over three seasons, including eight in FY2026. Each episode is a candid one-on-one interview with deejays, graffiti artists, emcees, musicians, dancers and entrepreneurs who helped pave the way for generations of creative individuals and groups, in Hawai'i and beyond, to follow in their footsteps.

The most popular interview this season was with artist SPEL ONER, who found an opportunity to channel his creativity and skill with computers, design and illustration into new mediums, inspiring new artists and connecting with generations.

'ONO! Hawai'i's Food Culture

Season Two of 'ONO! Hawai'i's Food Culture served up eight brand new episodes in FY2026, three more than its inaugural season. This PBS Hawai'i digital exclusive series takes viewers on a nostalgic culinary journey to discover the origin stories of some of Hawai'i's most iconic local foods like:

- How the Portuguese Malasada Took Over Hawai'i
- The Story of Hawaiian Poke (with Chef Sam Choy)
- Hawaiian Shave Ice is a Taste of Nostalgia
- Meat Jun is Hawai'i's Favorite Korean Comfort Food
- Li Hing Mui and the Story of Crack Seed in Hawai'i
- Huli Huli Chicken: Hawai'i's Roadside BBQ Dish

This season saw incredible growth with 1.4 million views. More than 400,000 of those views came from the feature on huli huli chicken, which became the fastest rising video on the PBS Hawai'i YouTube channel, triggering trips down memory lane for people across islands and generations as they remembered fundraisers, family meals and stops at their favorite roadside stands.

Connecting & Engaging with Our Community

Community is at the heart of all we do. Engaging with the people and organizations around our islands is imperative when it comes to building, reaffirming and strengthening our connections with the community we serve. Every interaction with keiki, kūpuna, 'ohana, donors and sponsors provides an opportunity for PBS Hawai'i to share what we do and show that our mission is more than just words, it is a promise to generations to come.

Keiki & 'Ohana

For decades, PBS and PBS Hawai'i have been synonymous with high-quality, trusted, beloved, educational programming for children. Many of these shows have taught generations about everything from complex emotions and relationships to learning the sounds to read a word, a sentence and eventually, a favorite story.

PBS Hawai'i is privileged to be able to play a role in helping to nurture the curiosity of keiki through several events throughout the year.

Our Annual Keiki Club Trunk O' Treat provided a safe, family-friendly, fun and interactive event for the entire 'ohana. Dozens of families joined us this year dressed up as their favorite characters to enjoy games, prizes and a sweet treat.

The fall fun continued with the Candy Crawl at Pearlridge Center complete with activities and outreach and an incredible costume contest and entertainment. About 5,000 families joined the annual event.

Our continued commitment to promote literacy took us back to Kaua'i for the Parent & Child Fair. Hundreds of children and their families gathered to celebrate the joy and importance of reading and play games before choosing a book to bring home.

The PBS Hawai'i team visited with a local preschool and Lincoln Elementary School in Honolulu to share some of our favorite stories as part of Read Across America Day and the ongoing effort to showcase the importance of reading for all ages.

Our fiscal year ended with an exciting collaboration with the Hawai'i State Public Library and its launch of its annual summer reading program. The PBS Hawai'i team connected with hundreds of local families, sharing favorite memories and books for all reading levels with keiki.

Donor Engagement

Our community and our donors make it possible for PBS Hawai'i to do what we do. To cultivate these relationships and maintain those strong ties, we offered several experiences demonstrating the impact of donor support as a way of sharing and saying, "Mahalo!"

Nā Mele is one of our hallmark programs and a viewer and community favorite. This year we hosted two marquee donor experiences centered around that show. First, a preview of Nā Mele: Kalapana, which gave donors a sneak peek at the unique production that incorporated live music with the legendary vocals of the late Macky Feary and Malani Bilyeu. Then, another new concert with Henry Kapono at Halekulani's House Without A Key, an intimate gathering in a beautiful setting that allowed donors to enjoy the moment and connect with our staff and performers.

As PBS Hawai'i celebrated 60 years of storytelling, donors were invited to tour the PBS Hawai'i studio and talk with staff in our different departments to get a behind the scenes look at what goes into creating our programs. These events provide a firsthand look at donor contributions at work and offer insights on what we have planned for the future.

Strengthening Relationships

Alongside engaging donors and inspiring keiki, PBS Hawai'i continues to strengthen its presence throughout the community with a focus on expanding relationships within Hawai'i's business and professional sectors.

In October, PBS Hawai'i returned to the Wahine Forum, a leadership and career development conference for women. Through an interactive booth experience, attendees explored samples of our programming and engaged directly with staff, creating meaningful conversations about the role public media plays in education, culture and our community.

As a member of the Chamber of Commerce Hawai'i, PBS Hawai'i participated in numerous networking events throughout the year. These opportunities allowed us to connect with professionals from a wide range of industries, increasing awareness of our educational resources, local programming and community initiatives while fostering new relationships with potential partners and supporters. Building on these efforts, we hosted a Chamber of Commerce Hawai'i Ambassadors meeting in January 2026. The event provided this select group of business professionals with an inside look at how we use storytelling to inform, educate and connect our community across multiple platforms.

These outreach efforts are helping PBS Hawai'i build new partnerships, broaden community awareness, and create a stronger foundation for future growth and support

Professional Development & Partnerships

For the first time since 2019, the HIKI NŌ Teachers Conference returned to an in-person format. Educators from across the islands participated in professional development workshops focused on storytelling, production techniques, curriculum integration and student engagement. The conference strengthened HIKI NŌ's and PBS Hawai'i's educator network and reaffirmed the value of providing opportunities for teachers to learn from one another while building connections with industry professionals and HIKI NŌ mentors.

Partnerships continued to play an important role in extending HIKI NŌ's community impact. HIKI NŌ staff and mentors participated in SHOOTs Summit Hawai'i, engaging with more than 700 students and nearly 100 educators through workshops presentations and judging activities. The ongoing partnership with Mental Health America of Hawai'i continued to grow through participation in the annual Mental health Awareness & Awards Celebration. Student storytellers were honored for their stories that spotlight youth mental health.

Our Community, Our Support

We are grateful to our grantors and sponsors for their continued support in helping PBS Hawai'i advance our mission. Because of these individuals and organizations, we have been able to enhance our educational programming and outreach efforts, our community engagement and involvement and our commitment to fostering a culture of collaboration and innovation.
